EDMONTON BULLETIN, DEC. 10, 1887.

RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT.

The late action of the North-West council in asking for provincial organization for the Territories with responsible government is worthy of all commendation. The more so when the composition of the council making the request is considered. It appears as though the federal government which held such a large share of control over that body had at last come to the conclusion to grant such government, or at least had felt that the people of the North-West were so united in opinion on the matter that whatever might be done at Ottawa it was not advisable to have anything said counter to that opinion at Regina. It is to be regretted that similar definite action was not taken by the council one or two sessions ago when the necessity was quite as great and circumstances quite as favorable. Had such action been taken and followed up, in view of the fact that a general federal election has taken place in the interval, there is a certainty that by this time either responsible government would have been granted or the reasons why it is withheld would be known. It was a plank in the platform of every one of the successful North-West candidates in the late federal elections, but subsequent events have shown that it was only put in as an election dodge. Because it was known that it would be a popular cry. There is a possibility that it is being used for the same purpose and for the same reason now. Certainly with four government supporters in the federal parliament sure of their seats for four more years the chances of any popular demand being granted are not as good as they would have been with a general election immediately in prospect.

But whatever may have been the motives of the council in the action taken, or whatever may be the intentions of the federal government in the matter, the duty of the people of the North-West to themselves is to press unitedly for these concessions. The present local government of the North-West is under the control of the federal department of the interior, just as are the lands, police and Indian departments. Its construction is varied from time to time by act of parliament, by order in council or by the granting or withholding of an appointment at the whim of that department. The nominal lieutenant-governor is really only a commissioner to administer the local government of the North-West as his superiors see fit, just as the Indian commissioner is appointed to administer Indian affairs, the police commissioner police affairs and the land commissioner land affairs. To him is delegated power to create offices and to fill them, issue proclamations which shall have the force of law, and to expend such moneys as are granted from time to time by the central authority for local government purposes in the nature of a provincial subsidy, subject of course in all things to the orders, private or public, of that authority. Powers of like nature delegated on similar terms to a commissioner for any other purpose than that of government would be all right. But the act of government involves the originating of laws as well as the carrying out of orders and this is where the difficulty of government by a commissioner comes in. Modern prejudice is against any one man taking upon himself the responsibility of originating a law, and indeed against a law being originated by other authority than that of the people for whose benefit it is to be administered. Consequently when the lieutenant-governor of the North-West was appointed it was felt to be necessary that he should have some assistance in framing such local laws as were needed. Owing to the widely and thinly scattered condition of the population of that time the people were not called upon then to elect men to assist in legislation, and instead as a temporary measure of convenience certain parties, chiefly officials appointed to reside in the North-West, were empowered as legislators or councillors, to assist the lieutenant-governor in making laws, and to act as his advisors in their execution. Provision was made however for the election of popular representatives at the earliest date to assist in legislation and executive and to provide that when population had increased to a reasonable extent only popular representation should be allowed to legislate. It was fully intended that as soon as increase of population and facilities of communication made such a step practicable the Territories should cease to be governed by commissioner and should govern themselves in local matters.

The necessary conditions were reached when the C. P. R. was constructed to Calgary, four years and a half ago, and still the federal government appears loth to give up its special authority. From its point of view the present system has many advantages. The possibilities and requirements of this vast region have not to be reckoned or dealt with as they would if its local government stood on a fixed foundation, supreme within certain limits. The annual grant from the federal funds due the people of the North-West equally with the people of the provinces need only be given in such amount as the department chooses and is only expended by the authority of the commissioner of the department, that is the lieutenant-governor. In the first place the amount granted annually is not nearly as large as the Territories are entitled to; in the next place the whole of that amount is seldom spent, the residue going to the credit of the department, not of the North-West; and in the third place although the money belongs properly to the people of the North-West it is spent at the order of the department or the whim of its commissioner more often as a bribery fund than for legitimate purposes. The saving—to the federal treasury—under the present system is no doubt considerable, while the absolute control of whatever money is granted is a very effective political weapon. Again, the absolute control of all local appointments and local offices ensures that provincial patronage shall always help instead of injuring—as it sometimes does in the provinces—the cause of the dominant party at Ottawa. Although the important matters of education, municipal government and the incorporation of local companies is committed to some extent to the keeping of the council to which a number of representatives of the people are now admitted, the power of choosing which communities shall be represented and which shall not, and of altering at any moment the powers or constitution of the council gives an almost absolute control over the most minute details of legislation that might in any way affect the party fortunes.

But little reasoning is needed to prove that the system which keeps the vast North-West so completely in the hands of the party in power is a most advantageous one from a party point of view, and as little to prove that it must be quite as disadvantageous to the people more immediately affected, and proportionately to Canada as a whole. When every administrative and legislative act is measured solely according to its party effect the interests of the people directly concerned certainly must suffer. That the interests of the people have suffered is shown by what the council's memorial calls the "ill-considered and inconsistent body of legislation" that has been passed by it; four-fifths of the time of each session apparently being occupied in amending or repealing the ordinances of the previous one. Nor is the financial administration any better than the legislation. One fourth of the income is spent in civil government, one ninth in printing, one seventh in departmental salaries and one sixth in legislation, far and away a worse record than the most wasteful of the provinces but only what might be certainly counted on under the circumstances.

It is necessary in the interests of the North-West that its government by a branch of a federal department should cease. That it should be accorded a local government with fixed powers and assured revenues on the plan of the other provinces of Canada, so that its laws may be framed and its affairs administered with a due regard to the wishes and welfare of its people. While it is generally conceded that present conditions have been outgrown and that changes must come soon the attempt is being made to show that the responsible system of government which prevails in all the other provinces should not be adopted, on the grounds that it is expensive. Whether expensive or not experience has proved it to be the form best adapted to the spirit of the present day, bringing the government more certainly in accord with the wish of the majority than any other system. It has advantages that no other system has and has no necessary disadvantages that are not as necessary in any other form. The municipal system is said to be cheaper, but it must be remembered that owing to the small area of the districts thus governed, under it any elector may see every act of every member during his whole term of office. This is impossible in the case of a large region such as the North-West. Under the responsible system some person whose position depends upon the vote of the people is clearly accountable for every thing that is done, or left undone. There is no possibility of shifting blame on to another's shoulders. Manitoba is pointed out as an example of the failure of responsible government, the blame of its bad financial administration being laid on that system. But there are circumstances in the case of Manitoba that do not exist in the case of the North-West. Responsible government was introduced into Manitoba at a time when the bulk of the people did not understand it, and under the management of probably the most corrupt and accomplished scoundrel that ever struck the country. The many different races and factions into which the people are yet divided make control by corrupt politicians under any form of government comparatively easy, and after all matters are managed better in Manitoba in many respects than in the North-West. In the Territories the people are practically one in race, interest and ambition and would not be subject to the control of factions or factionists as is Manitoba, and especially as it was before it was enlarged. Under any form of government there must be a civil service to transact the government business, there must be heads to the various departments and the only question is, Is it in the public interest that those heads should be responsible to the people or not? It was never yet found to be good policy to allow business to be neglected in order to save salaries, and if it should cost four or five thousand dollars a year to secure departmental responsibility there is every reason to believe that that expenditure would result in a saving rather than a loss. If Ontario is taken as an example, where the conditions of an enlightened, ambitious and united people approach more nearly to those of the North-West than to those of Manitoba, the responsible system works admirably and economically, and there is every reason to believe that it would work as admirably and as economically—all things considered—in the North-West. The responsible system is essentially the British system. It is the present embodiment of the idea of strong and free government. It is the one peculiarly adapted to the conditions existing in the North-West, and the only one that will satisfy the country.

The temperance convention held lately in Regina passed a resolution, moved by the Rev. J. F. Betts of Calgary, that the issue of permits for liquor in the North-West should be placed in the hands of a commissioner other than the lieutenant-governor; that their issue be restricted to such as might be required for domestic or mechanical use, and that no permit be issued to any one who had once abused the privilege allowed. Rev. Mr. Betts contradicted the extreme reports of wholesale liquor dealing and selling in Calgary.

THE HAY CASE.

THE sheriff's sale of oats belonging to A. McLean of Clover Bar last week is a sample of the assistance given settlers by the Edmonton & Saskatchewan land company in this district, and throws some light upon the amount of reliance that may safely be placed on the word of the present minister of interior. In the season of '85 the interior department gave notice that settlers requiring to cut hay on government lands would have to pay for the privilege. No instructions were issued as to what course should be taken regarding the lands included in the tract of the Edmonton & Saskatchewan land company. McLean being settled near the centre of the company's tract, and having been there long before the company had an existence, applied to the government land agent for permission to cut a certain piece of hay on land claimed by the colonization company. He could not get the required permission nor was he refused the right to cut. He had had some differences with the agent of the company which made it impossible to get the company's consent to cut had that been required, and at the same time the agent had informed similar applicants that he had no authority to issue written permission to cut on the company's lands, all he could give was his personal permission verbally. McLean went on and cut without permission. He was arrested, charged with larceny, and fined, the fine and costs amounting to a very considerable sum for a poor man, and the hay that he had cut but not removed was confiscated for the benefit of the company. Subsequently during the same season, but after the time for cutting hay was over, instructions were issued to the government land agent that the authority to issue permits to cut hay on lands within the colonization company's tract rested in him and not in the agent of the company. During the same fall the minister of interior, then new fledged, was in the North-West, and took occasion in addressing a meeting at Qu'Appelle to allude to this particular case and take the ground that the company not owning the land upon which the hay grew had acted unwarrantably and that McLean had been dealt with unfairly and harshly. Afterwards the land in question was declared reserved for the purposes of the company, showing that it was not reserved at the time that McLean committed the alleged larceny by cutting—not removing—the hay on it. In view of these facts and especially in view of the expressions of the minister, McLean entered action at law to recover the amount of damages he had sustained. He was defeated, the judge holding, contrary to the minister, that the company did at that time own the land and had the right to the hay. Of course he was saddled with the costs. Now the first season that he has had a surplus over what the exemption ordinance allows him it is seized and sold, and still justice (?) is not satisfied. It is not desirable to argue the point here whether McLean was right or wrong, whether he was treated fairly or unfairly, but it does not need a Philadelphia lawyer to prove that the government which left large numbers of the original settlers at the mercy of the company for hay, as McLean was, and the company which exercised the power allowed it as the E. & S. land company has done in his case, were neither of them working in the interests of this district or the people in it; and if our district has not progressed as fast as others in the territories of late years the company and the government must share the bulk of the blame between them.

Grip's comic almanac for 1888 is out. It covers 26 pages the same size as Grip and is profusely and comically illustrated. Price only 10 cents. The cartoons are chiefly by J. W. Bengough, but a former contributor to Grip, A. H. Howard, has several of his original, artistic and highly acceptable compositions. Grip is a great paper and barring its late commercial union insanity, a good one, but it appears to fall more tamely on the public mind than it used to. Not that its cartoons are not as well conceived and executed as formerly, but because the style of the cartoonist from constant repetition has become too familiar. Variety is the spice of life, and much more so that of a comic paper. Mr. Bengough depends too much on his own pencil. Howard's and Cote's contributions which occasionally appear in its pages are perhaps not as good all around as his own, but they may be better in some particulars, and at any rate inasmuch as they are a change they are refreshing. Doubtless there are other artists available of sufficient ability to entitle them to appear in Grip's pages who would still further add to the variety, the merit, the influence and ultimately to the profit of the paper. Some time ago the World unkindly hinted that Grip was not a financial success. There is such a thing as starving a paper. Certainly its reading matter has never been equal to its cartoons. Grip has always been a credit to Canada, but Canada is growing and competition is getting keener. Perhaps Canada could not support Grip if it was extensively improved and again perhaps if it was improved as suggested it would be better supported.

LOCAL.

REPORTS from Lac la Biche, Lac la Nonne, Lake Ste. Anne, and other fur trading points are to the effect that a good hunt is being made. Not much fur has come in yet, but what has been bought has been generally very good.

SLEIGHING is still reported poor owing to the dryness of the snow allowing the sand of the road to work up through it. The weather has not been warm enough since the snow fell to cause it to pack and become smooth under the runners.

THE Winnipeg Commercial says that the poultry which is imported from Ontario in the winter frozen is sometimes kept in that condition until the following July, when it is put on the market. A northern climate has advantages as well as drawbacks.

RETAIL meat market: Choice cuts 15c, roast, 12c; boil, 10c; pork, 12c; mutton, 12 to 15c; chickens scarce at 30c; turkeys, offered at $2 apiece. Beef by the carcass, 9c; single hind-quarter 10c; single fore-quarter 8c. Potatoes, none to be had. Onions, say $2.50 per bushel. Cabbage 10c to 15c per head.

SACHE & WALTER have begun mining coal on the former's claim, south side, in only about four feet above the level of the river. It is good three feet thick, the coal very hard and bright and comes out in large pieces. It approaches more nearly to anthracite than any coal yet mined in this vicinity.

THE H. B. Co. have erected at the Athabasca landing this fall a log dwelling 22x28 with kitchen 22x14, story and a half high, plastered with lime and sand; blacksmith shop 18x24, log, and workshop 27x80, of slabs. The lumber for the new steamer has been sawed and the timbers are being prepared.

Le Courier du Canada of Quebec city, Nov. 15th, notices the departure of Mr. Ubalde Prieur of Montreal for Edmonton to enter into a law partnership with R. Strachan, crown prosecutor. Le Courier says: "Mr. Prieur has been our colleague during many years, being attached to the staff of Le Monde, L'Etandard and La Presse, and left among us but good souvenirs of his talent as a journalist. We wish him all success possible."

A. R. BROOKE, sergeant, who was in charge of the Courterelles at the time of their escape, writes indignantly to say that he was neither taken to Regina nor reduced as stated by the BULLETIN. As his letter is dated from Regina he leaves it an open question as to how he got there. The BULLETIN is interested to know that it is a less offence in the police force to let a prisoner escape than to refuse to blacken an officer's boots.

THE auction sale of farm stock and implements belonging to the estate of the late Alex. McKinlay took place at his late residence, south side, on Monday, G. A. Blake auctioneer. There was a small attendance. The farm was bought in at an upset price of $900. Two mares went one at $135 and one at $120, and two colts at $26 and $27 respectively. Seven pigs went for $5 and pair of native made sleighs for $24. 150 bushels of oats from the thresher went at 45 and 50 cts.

THE Edmonton Glee club which was organized some weeks ago is preparing to give a classical concert about the latter end of the present month or the beginning of next. The officers are G. A. Watson, president; W. Stiff, vice-president; Antonio Prince, secretary-treasurer; Dr. McInnis, musical director. There are some twelve to sixteen members who take part in the rehearsals. Besides a majority of the best male voices in town the club boast a goodly number of wind and stringed instruments including violin, violoncello, flute, clarinet and others. A large quantity of new music ordered by the club will arrive soon.

JOHN CAMERON, of A. Macdonald & Co., has just completed and is now occupying one of the most substantial, best finished and costly residences in the North-West. The building is situated on Mr. Cameron's property, D. McLeod estate, on the north side of Main street. It has two stories and basement, mansard tiled roof, and is in the form of an "L" the main part being 26x32 exclusive of bay window, and wing 18x20. The walls are solid brick, 20 inches in the basement and 14 inches above ground. The height of the ceiling of the lower story is 11 feet 4 inches, of the upper 10 feet, and the basement 7 feet. The lower story of the main part of the building is occupied by a drawing room, and dining room, with archway between, and a hall and stairway. The wing is occupied by the kitchen. The upper story is divided into six rooms. The windows are of two lights each of 30x40 glass. The material, workmanship and finish of the building is first class throughout and is a good specimen of what can be done here with home material and home skill. Jas. Mc-Donald was architect and contractor, W. West laid the brick, Johnstone & Petrie did the plastering, W. Patton the painting and Ross Bros. the tin work. The total cost is about $8,000.

GENERAL.

The steamer Colville was frozen in on Lake Winnipeg on Oct. 24th.

Dennis Moore, the stove manufacturer of Hamilton, Ont., is dead.

G. C. King, the present mayor of Calgary, offers himself for re-election.

Ex Judge Travis of Calgary has decided to take up his residence in Toronto.

The police riding school building at Regina was burned recently. Loss $40,000.

The yellow fever has been closed out at Tampa, Florida, by frost on Nov. 22nd.

It is now reported that the late Senator Senecal died heavily in debt and that his widow is penniless.

The MacLeod Gazette declares straight for provincial organization of the North-West under responsible government.

The Calgary Tribune says that there is a prospect of Icelandic immigration coming in to the Red Deer river country.

STENNET GEMMEL & Co., have established themselves in Winnipeg as agents for the sale of raw furs on commission.

An arrangement between the Northern Pacific and Canada Pacific is reported. If so, good by to the Red River railway.

Rabbits have been very numerous in Manitoba for the past year or two and are reported to be dying off in thousands this winter.

Mallory, straight commercial unionist, is running against Cochrane, conservative, for the commons in East Northumberland, Ont.

The war claims commission has awarded $2,000 to the estate of Gowanlock, murdered at Frog lake in '85. Mrs. Gowanlock has applied for letters of administration.

The Calgary Herald says that the last session of the North-West council was brought to a close with unseemly haste, and that it might well be called the "shirking session."

Two thousand crofters on the Island of Lewis have commenced a campaign to exterminate the deer of the preserves there. They say 6,000 crofters are starving who ought to be living on the land now given up to deer.

Notice of expropriation of certain lands at Emerson by the C. P. R. company is given in the last Canada Gazette. The parties are named George Morrison and Robert Marvin, and are offered $37 and $14 respectively for their lands.

The Calgary papers now say that C. J. Christie, lately reported to have been lost in the mountains, has turned up in Helena, Montana, safe and sound. They also say that he has a bad record.

The police division sent to Kootenay, B. C., originally consisted of 75 men, and is now reduced by sickness, death and desertions to 55. The band of Indians with whom they have to cope numbers 175 men.

In the libel case of the 65th battalion against E. E. Sheppard of the News, tried in Montreal on the 28th, Sheppard made a full apology. A fine of $10 and costs $165 was imposed. Sheppard agreed to pay the full costs in the case, some $2,200 before the 1st of March.

The Lethbridge News endorses the North-West council's proposition for a new form of government for the North-West, under the impression that it provides for the executive function being exercised by the lieutenant-governor. If this is the correct meaning of the memorial practically no change has been proposed.

The Calgary Herald's Ottawa dispatch says: "Regarding the issue of the circular by the department requiring all North-West pre-emptions to be paid on January 1st, the minister of the interior has agreed to withdraw it and extend the payments over three years from January 1st in three equal instalments."

Mary F. Middleton, wife of a relative of General Middleton who was accused of eloping lately from Ottawa with a bank clerk named Hamilton, has applied for a divorce from her husband on the grounds of adultery, cruelty and desertion, and Middleton has applied for divorce from her on the grounds of adultery and desertion.

J. W. Powers, of Regina, has produced a history of Regina in book form, (cloth). It contains a large amount of interesting information concerning the capital of the North-West in Mr. Power's best style, and has engravings of Commissioner Herchmer, D. L. Scott, Q. C., Mayor Mowat, N. F. Davin, M. P., Hayter Reed and other notables. The price is $1.50 per copy.

ACCORDING to the arrangement of provincial subsidies prepared at the inter-provincial conference the North-West if organized into a province would, on a basis of a population of 50,000, be entitled to a subsidy from the federal treasury for local government purposes of $140,000 a year against the $20,000 received a few years ago and the $80,000 or $90,000 received now.

The Montreal Trade Bulletin advises traders to ship whatever bear, beaver, otter and skunk they have on hand at once, as the present local demand for these furs is quite brisk now but will not last long. Beaver has been sold at $3.50 to $4 a pound, bear at $15 to $18 per skin, cubs at $5 to $10 otter at $10 to $12, and skunk at 50c 75c. For choice lots of beaver these figures would be exceeded. Trade in England is very satisfactory, and German and French markets are fairly active. Exporting furs such as fox, fisher and mink are likely to rule low owing to the unsettled condition of Russian affairs. Quotations are: Fox, $1; martin, $1; fisher, $3 to $5; mink, $1; muskrat, 50c.

The memorial regarding police contracts at that place agreed upon by the citizens of Battleford at their late meeting accuses the police authorities of importing oats for that post after the local crop was assured at a cost of from twenty to thirty cents a bushel more than local oats could have been purchased for; of letting a contract for dry wood to a Regina man at 27c a cord more than a responsible local man offered to furnish the same for; that the hay contract of '86 was filled at a loss to the government of $2,000, and that government money was advanced by the commissioner to enable the contractor to carry on his contract; says that the statements of the Herald in the matter expresses the universal opinion of the settlers of the district, and demands an investigation to result, if the charges are proved, in the removal of the commissioner.
